Political Science Exam – Correct Answers & Explanations

All answers are grounded in the provided lecture material unless a SOURCE TRANSITION is explicitly stated.

Question 1: Political science are divided into several fields, such as:

A. Public policy | B. Comparative politics | C. International relation | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: D. All the previous

Explanation: The lecture explicitly lists "comparative politics, international relations" as sub-disciplines and then adds "Other notable sub disciplines are public policy and administration". Therefore, all three options are named as fields of political science in the course material.

Question 2: Elements of the state, such as:

A. Political parties | B. Stability | C. Territory | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: C. Territory

Explanation: The lecture specifies the four agreed-upon elements of the State as "population, territory, government and sovereignty". "Political parties" and "stability" are not classified as elements of the state in the transcript.

Question 3: Advantages of Presidential System:

A. stability | B. Separation of Powers | C. direct Elections | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: D. All the previous

Explanation: Under "Advantages of Presidential Systems" the lecture names "Direct Elections", "Separation of Powers", and "Stability" as distinct benefits. Hence, all three apply.

Question 4: A disadvantage of a parliamentary system is....

A. there is a lack of obvious separation of power | B. It's easier to pass legislation | C. It is quicker legislative action | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: A. there is a lack of obvious separation of power

Explanation: The lecture lists "easier to pass legislation" and "quicker legislative action" as advantages of a parliamentary system. The major criticism is exactly "a lack of obvious separation of power".

Question 5: There are many functions of Political Parties such as:

A. Facilitate Governance | B. Recruitment of qualified candidates | C. Mobilize Voters | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: D. All the previous

Explanation: ⚠️ SOURCE TRANSITION: The lecture transcript does not cover functions of political parties. Standard political science references (e.g., Heywood) identify facilitating governance, recruiting candidates, and mobilizing voters as core party functions, so all three are correct.

Question 6: Sociology provides sociological background to:

A. The nature of governmental organs | B. State | C. Power | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: A. The nature of governmental organs

Explanation: The exact wording in the lecture is that sociology provides background to "the nature of governmental organs", among other things, while political science itself studies the state and power.

Question 7: There are many types of political systems such as:

A. Parliamentary system | B. State | C. Government | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: A. Parliamentary system

Explanation: The lecture distinguishes between political systems (parliamentary, presidential, semi-presidential) and political concepts/institutions. "State" and "Government" are defined as separate concepts, not as types of political systems.

Question 8: There are many differences between Presidential system and semi presidential system such as:

A. The nature of executive authority | B. There are political parties | C. There is president of the state | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: A. The nature of executive authority

Explanation: The lecture highlights that the semi-presidential system has a "dual executive structure" (president + prime minister) as a move away from a purely presidential system. Both systems may have political parties and a president, so the distinguishing feature is the nature of the executive.

Question 9: The realism school is based on some assumptions:

A. The state centric assumption | B. The unitary relation actor assumption | C. The anarchy assumption | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: D. All the previous

Explanation: The lecture states realism is based on three main assumptions: the state-centric assumption, the unitary rational actor assumption, and the anarchy assumption. All three are listed.

Question 10: Liberals emphasis on encouraging global cooperation through:

A. The promotion of free international trade | B. International institutions | C. Disarmament | D. All the previous

✅ Correct Answer: D. All the previous

Explanation: The "Liberal Reform Program" explicitly includes international institutions, disarmament, and promotion of free international trade as methods to encourage global cooperation.

Question 11: International Relations is the oldest field in political science

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: False

Explanation: The lecture clearly states: "Political Theory is the oldest field in political science", not International Relations.

Question 12: Comparative politics focuses on politics within countries and analyzes similarities and differences between countries

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: True

Explanation: The lecture gives a verbatim definition: "Comparative politics focuses on politics within countries (often grouped into world regions) and analyzes similarities and differences between countries."

Question 13: There are many differences between Political science and Sociology

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: True

Explanation: The lecture opens a dedicated section with the exact phrase: "There are many differences between Political science and Sociology, such as..."

Question 14: Sovereignty of the State has one only aspect, external sovereignty

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: False

Explanation: The lecture says: "Sovereignty of the State has two aspects, internal sovereignty and external sovereignty." Stating it has only one aspect is incorrect.

Question 15: Ministers have a collective responsibility only to the parliament In presidential system

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: False

Explanation: Collective and individual ministerial responsibility is a central feature of the parliamentary system, not the presidential system. In the presidential system, the executive is independent of the legislature and the president's cabinet is not composed of legislators.

Question 16: Political parties are not funded by contributions from governmental or public funding

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: False

Explanation: ⚠️ SOURCE TRANSITION: The lecture material lacks information on party funding. In reality, many democratic states provide direct or indirect public funding to political parties, making this statement false in most comparative contexts.

Question 17: In a two - party system, the power shifts between three major, dominant parties

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: False

Explanation: ⚠️ SOURCE TRANSITION: The lecture does not define this. By standard definition (Encyclopaedia Britannica), a two-party system involves power shifting between two dominant parties, not three.

Question 18: Realism school assumed there is no a global government over the states

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: True

Explanation: This matches the lecture's description of the anarchy assumption: "the international system is characterized by anarchy, which means that there is no global government over the states."

Question 19: The main limitation of realism that it concentrates only in one variable, which is the power

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: True

Explanation: Under the evaluation of realism, the lecture states: "The main limitation of realism that it concentrates only in one variable, which is the power..."

Question 20: The International level interpreting the international relations concentrating on the person or persons who are taking decisions

True / False

✅ Correct Answer: False

Explanation: Concentrating on the persons taking decisions defines the Individual level. The International (system) level focuses on alliances, distribution of power, and international organizations.

Generated from lecture content only; Tier-2 external sources were used only where the lecture was silent (questions 5, 16, 17).